

Food Allergy Policy

Parents are responsible to disclose the level of need for their child's allergy to the appropriate school staff. WCCS can only make classroom parents aware of food allergies within the classroom; however, the school does not assure parents that food items served at school are free from those allergens. Parents of children with severe allergies should provide appropriate and safe food for their children. Parents may request special seating for their child at lunch to limit contact with foods that cause a severe reaction.
